MARCHING KNIGHTS.

The Annual Meeting of the Knights Templar in St. Louis Carried Out in Curtailed Proportions—A Moving Mass of Music and the Chivalry of the Land, Hearing Beautiful Banquets—An Impassioned St. Louis, Sept. 23.—The contrast between this morning and last Tuesday, the day originally intended for the great Knights Templar parade, was very marked. Old Sol peered above a hazy eastern horizon with a determination not to be eclipsed by clouds, but in unison with the currents joined in the work of formulating a hot center about St. Louis.

The south wind, however, awake with the early morn and did its part to offset the efforts of the elements to "make it hot" for the closing exercises of the grand convocation.

GETTING INTO LINE.

There was neither hitch, crook, turn, nor change in the programme of the parade. Every man, stout or meek, was in his place and doing his duty. Promptly on the Missouri Commercial was on the extreme left, and the crowd made progress a little slow, as the women and children could not be trod under foot, although it was provoking at times the patience of the men.

At the corner of second and Clark avenue the crowd was not so dense, and the parade was able to move promptly at eleven o'clock.
